Steve resumes his VPIC service after seven years of retirement. He has previously served a total of 33 years on Vermont public pension boards, including the first 13 years of existence of VPIC. For a brief shining moment in 2016, he served as VPIC Chair. He also served on the Vermont Municipal Employees Retirement Board for the entire 33-year period, chairing that Board for more than half that period. In that role, he oversaw a significant improvement in benefits, expansion of membership and growth in asset valuation.

While serving on the pension boards, Steve was employed by the Vermont League of Cities and Towns. He served as its Executive Director from 1982 to 2015, having previously served as its Associate Executive Director, beginning in 1978. He was responsible for administration and service and advocacy programs of the official cooperative association of Vermont municipal governments. He developed and managed group purchasing services including unemployment, employee health, life and disability, public officials' liability, workers compensation and property and casualty insurances for members. He previously worked for the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities as a Staff Associate for Labor Relations, and for the New England Municipal Center.

He earned his BA in government at Bates College in Lewiston, Maine and his Masters of Public Administration at the University of New Hampshire in Durham, New Hampshire. He also completed the John F. Kennedy School of Government Senior Executives in State and Local Government Program at Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 2002.

His community service includes serving on the Roxbury Volunteer Fire Department and as its town moderator, and service as Northfield's town moderator, and member of its planning commission, recreation board, merger study committees and police citizen advisory committee.

Steve lives in Northfield with his wife Marilyn who receives a pension from the Vermont State Teachers Retirement System having contributed during her many years of teaching in Roxbury and Northfield.
